November 10th, 2012 (A.S. XLV)

at Camp Cimarron, Coyle, Oklahoma
(11405 West 128th St., Coyle, OK 73027)

While the fighters and artisans vie for their respective championships, the Cooks of the populace are invited to take their ease in the kitchen and halls of the site to consider the diverse studies of the palate.

Whether interested in cooking upon the hearth or planning a feast, come and take time to gain in the gentler arts. Other classes planned at this time include a survey of spices, sugar paste, basic brewing, and cooking on a budget.

Classes will be taught throughout the day in the kitchen, and in both of the halls on the site.

Even better, take time to share your learning and experience with your cooking peers. If you are interested in teaching, please contact the Class Coordinator, Dame Alix Tiberga.
